#66: Okay. Describe the individuals, describe the people involved in area "D", the people in these groups.

#01: ...Different groups, just different ways,..subtle difference,...action is subtly different, language is different. Groups participate in separate ethnics.Sense area "D" targets are...multi national. Area "C's" single, single country target.

#66: I don't understand the your choice of words.

#01: Training,..for a target,...training for target area "C" is..single country. Area "D" is a...different countries.

#66: Okay.

#01: ...But it's all training. Mostly recognition. Just a minute.These are not advanced students, impression of ...newer student, initiates.These are all new ones. That's all I get.

#66: Okay. I have no further questions concerning areas "C" and "D".

#01: ...I..have this overwhelming impression of it's very old fashioned, this learning technique that they're using there, is all old fashioned mockups and..silhouettes and..three-view drawings,...stuff that's filtered in from the fields over years and years. That's is like preliminary "learn to walk before you run" kind of atmosphere,..until you're comfortable with the normality of things you see here and we're not going to subject you to heavy technicalities, you know, heavy learning things. Sort of like what we see as being normal in our everyday life, is completely new to these people or unique, you know the technicalities of things.It's a really old fashioned learning method. That's all I get from this.

4. REPORT OF FINDINGS

On 19 July 1983, Source Q7-01 was interviewed concerning two areas identified to him as "C" and "D" within a group of unidentified buildings. Source stated substantially as follows:

On the upper floors of area "C" there were large open bay type rooms. These rooms were used as classrooms and on the walls were drawings or profile diagrams which were used as identification charts. One of these charts displayed, "front view, side view . . . drawn to scale," what looked like a microwave reflector (not further identified). On the lower floors of area "C" there were classrooms with "mockups" of what Source described as electrical equipment "like telephones, switches, connectors . . . mounted on boards" (not further identified). Below this area there were rooms with iron doors, utilities, and storage rooms. Source summarized his knowledge of area "C" as an area of "mockups of commercial communications equipment, instruction area, or recognition area."

The bottom floor of area "D" was a reference library containing "technical, how-to books." Above the bottom floor were classrooms in which groups (not further identified) of approximately six or seven individuals were taught in different languages (not further identified). This language instruction included the use of "technical phrases" and/or "dialectal language" (not further identified). Many technical words were associated with this instruction. Instruction included the use of visual aids such as pictures projected on the wall (not further identified).

Source reported that the training taking place in area "C" seemed to be focused on a single country (not further identified) whereas the training in area "D" involved different countries (not further identified). All of this training was
